"On the whole, then, I am of the opinion that the provision of the act of Congress of February 26th, 1862, declaring the notes issued in pursuance of that act to be lawful money, and a legal tender, is UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

"This renders it necessary that I should consider the other question which has been made, as to the effect of the special agreement to pay in lawful silver money of the United States. I am in favor of entering judgment for the plaintiff, but as a majority of the court are of a different opinion, judgment for the defendant."

In the same copy of the Age is a carefully prepared eulogy of the Judge and his opinion, in which is the following:

"Judge Sharswood reasons upon and decides the case as if he were some lofty spirit sitting far above and out of the contentions and strifes of the world."

Will not the holders of greenbacks and Government bonds consider the Judge as quite too elevated and ethereal for such earthly honors as a seat on the Supreme Bench?

DR. CURWEN, of the Pennsylvania State Hospital for the cure of the Insane, at Harrisburg, writes to us that the notice which recently appeared in our paper to the effect that the institution would receive no patients until such time as the number of inmates may be reduced to three hundred and fifty has been misconstrued by other journals. He announces that recent cases, or those who have been insane less than six months, and who are not subject to epilepsy, will be admitted into the Hospital at any time on complying with the regulations relative to admission.

A BRUTAL prize fight occurred at St. Louis on Sunday last. The participators were arrested before the mill was concluded. Such exhibitions of moral depravity have become quite numerous of late, perhaps all owing to the elevation of one of the leading buffers to a place in Congress.

NEW ORLEANS is greatly delighted with their experiments in the Nicolson pavements, having had several streets recently paved with it. The Republic thinks it vastly superior to any style of paving yet introduced in the Crescent city.

THE Board of Trade in Chicago remonstrates against the recent interference by the authorities with the peculiar system of commercial gambling or "short" selling so much in vogue in that city.

Two More Unfortunates—Double Suicide in Nashville—A Pair of Abandoned Women Poison Themselves—History of the Parties and the Case.

A double tragedy, bearing the nature of a coincidence, occurred in Nashville, on Saturday, which resulted in the death of Jane Caroline Gills, alias "Matt Wells," and "Thursday Maury," alias "Lou. Wilks." The two women were both handsome and dashing dames du pave, who occupied, with other kindred and congenial spirits, the dwellings in which the tragedies took place. Their residences were in that quarter of the town made up of small and dingy buildings, but not considered disreputable.

In other words the gay ladies of the aristocratic jungles regard it as out of fashion and "second rate," and have since abandoned it for more recherche regions. Although the two unfortunate women came to their death by morphine, and were intimate, living next door to each other, it does not appear that there was any concerted design in the mode or manner of their deaths. We shall have to take the cases, therefore, separately. There are some curious features that give color and character to each.

"THE STAR OF THE WEST."

The habitues of the splendid house of Madame Ellize, on Tenth street, in the city of St. Louis, will doubtless remember a sweet-faced, rosy-cheeked, plump little girl, who came here three years ago from the neighboring country, and soon acquired, by her gaity and vivacious manners, the sobriquet of the "Star of the West." She was the daughter of a poor Welsh wine-presser, of the name of Gills, and had married a steamboat man before she was fifteen years old. Her husband took her to New Orleans and died, leaving her with one child. A year after she married again and came up to Paducah, where she was left by her second lord and master, who happened to be a "sport" and on the "rove."

On his return he found her engaged in a desperate intrigue with an actor, with whom, like a philosopher, he wisely resolved to leave her. The actor soon deserted her; and thus she, also, after various adventures, found herself at seventeen, having given birth to and lost three children, an innocent and brilliant house of ill-fame, its "chief card" and favorite. She played the piano, sang songs, gambled, caused two duels, was on and off with a dozen "lovers," faded, grew desperate, and finally disappeared. She came from St. Louis to Nashville just seven months ago. Since her arrival she has devoted herself to a single "friend," but has shown signs of a reckless disposition. Her principal associate was her neighbor, Lou. Wilks, and the latter indulged only too freely in the "flowing bowl" for the purpose, as they said, of "drowning their cares." The one had deserted a worthy father and a virtuous vineyard, and the other had her cause of grief and regret likewise, which we will relate.

AN EAST TENNESSEE "POOR WHITE."

On Temperance Hill, in East Knoxville, there lived, perhaps there still lives, a worthy laboring man, Joseph Maury by name. About ten years ago he ran away with and married a young girl from one of the upper counties, of rich and respectable parents. They came to Knoxville where they lived happily enough until the fall of that city in 1863, when a faithful wife and mother was converted by flattery and excitement into an abandoned woman. She was led astray by a Federal colonel, and eloped with a soldier en route for the "front," who brought her to Nashville. Her husband was not able to follow her, but she contrived afterward to procure her only child, a son, who is now an orphan of about nine years. Her career ever since has been one of dissipation. Yet she is only 26—prematurely old, wrinkled and decayed.

THE LAST MEETING.

Jane Gill, the "Star of the West," and Mary Wilks, the truant wife of poor Maury, met for the last time Friday evening about dusk, on the suspension bridge. One had been in Edgefield on a business errand, and the other had repaired to the bridge to fill an appointment with her lover. The faithless man did not appear, and the pair turned homeward down Market street. On the way home Mary Wilks stopped at an apothecary's and bought some morphine. The pair parted soon after.

THE DEATH OF THE "STAR OF THE WEST."

Jane Gill entered her room flushed and excited. Her lover had not kept his appointment. The object, it seems, she had first in mind was the payment of her rent, which was due, and for this reason she had written to him to meet her at the bridge, and he had promised her that he would do so. His failure evinced a determination not to "come down with the stamps." She was greatly depressed, and talked much about her condition, saying that she would rather die than be turned out by the sheriff. A little before twelve o'clock (Friday night) she went to Page's drug store and bought a small bottle of morphine, representing that a woman had just been taken ill with cholera morbus. Previously to this she had drank at least a pint of whisky.

When she returned to her room, a negro servant, suspecting her design, implored her to go to bed. The unfortunate woman, excited to frenzy, drew her knife and threatened to kill her if she approached. Then, by a sudden spasm of lunacy, she took the morphine and fell down on the bed. Dr. Plunkett was called, but when he arrived she was in a dying state. She breathed her last on Saturday, at half past eight o'clock in the forenoon. The women in the vicinity collected and paid all the respect they could to the body. They robed her in a plain black silk, with a white body, lace collar and cuffs. She looked as she laid there like an innocent young girl. She bore few or no traces of dissipation. Death seemed to have purified the remains of a guilty life.

THE DEATH OF LOU WILKS.

About four weeks ago, Lou. Maury alias Lou. Rice, after a long career of dissipation, was married to James Wilks, who was recently committed to jail for stealing mules. This live stock operator and declared enemy to horse insurance companies, amused himself by writing fond letters to his "dear wife," and made numberless promises of amendment when released.

On Friday night, a man who has been moved by either shame or remorse to request that the papers suppress his name, went to Lou. Wilks' house and conducted himself in such a manner as to cause her intense pain and distress. She had, it appears, been "sweet" on him, and had lived with him as his mistress some three years. She had supported him with her small gains, and had even sold her clothing to procure liquor for his depraved appetites. He made the usual return—deserted her for another woman. On the night already mentioned he reproached her for having married Wilks, and swore that, though she might cry her eyes out, he would never see her again. Having made her as miserable as possible he left the house.

In a few moments, about 12 o'clock, she had procured and swallowed the poison which terminated her wretched existence. The aid of the physician was called in too late. She died a half-past ten o'clock Saturday morning. Her corpse was neatly laid out by her companions, put in a poplar coffin, and sent to the grave yard in a furniture car.

The Attempt of a Mother to Prostitute Her Two Daughters.

One afternoon last week, a notorious prostitute, called Lou Wheeler, was examined at the Chicago Police Court, on a charge of attempting to reduce her own daughters to prostitution. Her arrest was chronicled by the News several days since. It seems that she went to an infamous establishment kept by Fred. Kaiser, bringing with her two girls about sixteen years of age, for whom she engaged a room and board, and the usual privileges of the establishment. The girls she called Ida Jones and Jenny Weeks. Kaiser has had as much trouble with the police as he desires to be pestered with, and perceiving that the girls were not professional prostitutes, he wisely imagined that the best way to keep out of trouble would be to inform the police of the affair. The consequence was that the woman Wheeler was arrested, and the other persons were brought into the Court to testify against her. She denied that Ida was her daughter, though she confessed she had lived with her for years. The girl said that she had always supposed herself to be Mrs. Wheeler's daughter, and the rest of the testimony confirmed the supposition. Mrs. Wheeler was fined $100, and the two girls were held until their friends, who are said to live near Valparaiso, Ind., can come for them.—N. Y. News.

FROM GEORGIA.

AUGUSTA, GA., August 14.—The following order has been issued by General Pope:

General Orders, No. 69. First—The Commanding General has become aware that civil officers in this military district are only observing his order, prohibiting them from using any influence to deter or dissuade the people from reconstructing the State government under the recent act of Congress, so far as their action in such convention is concerned, and they are at the same time by their patronage supporting and encouraging newspapers which are almost without an exception opposing reconstruction and obstructing and embarrassing civil officers appointed by the military instit commanders in the performance of their duties, by denunciation and threats of future penalties for their official acts.

Second. Such use of the patronage of their offices is simply an evasion, perhaps unintentional, of the provisions of the general order above referred to, and is in fact an employment of the machinery of the Provisional State Governments to defeat the execution of the reconstruction acts.

Third. It is therefore ordered that all advertisements or other official publications, heretofore, or to the hereafter provided for by State or municipal laws, or ordinances, be given by the proper civil officers, whose duty it is to have such publications or made, to such newspapers and such only as have not opposed and do not oppose reconstruction under the acts of Congress, nor attempt to obstruct in any manner civil officers appointed by the military authorities in this district in the discharge of their duty, by threats of violence, or persecution, and other penalties, as soon as military protection is withdrawn, for acts performed in their official capacity.

Fourth. All officers in this military district, and all officers of the Freedmen's Bureau, and all Boards of Registration, or other persons in the employment of the United States, under its military jurisdiction, are directed to give prompt attention to the enforcement of this order, and to make immediate report to these headquarters of any civil officers who violate its provisions.

FIRST EDITION.

MIDNIGHT.

FROM WASHINGTON.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, August 13, 1867.

THE SECRETARY OF WAR MATTER.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE UNITED STATES, WASHINGTON CITY, D. C., August 12, 1867.—E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War—SIR: Enclosed herewith I have to transmit to you a copy of a letter just received from the President of the United States, notifying me of my appointment as Acting Secretary of War, and directing me to assume the duties at once. In notifying you of my acceptance, I cannot let the opportunity pass without expressing to you my appreciation of this zeal, patriotism, firmness and ability with which you have ever discharged the duties of Secretary of War. With great respect,

Your obedient servant,

U. S. GRANT, General.

The Tribune special says the suspension of Stanton has created some excitement and many speculations as to whose turn it will be next. Sheridan and Seward are singled out very generally. It is almost the universal impression that both of these gentlemen will sever their connection with the administration for this reason. Both are disgusted with the President. Seward has long been trying to get Grant to join all his trouble with the President, and especially in this last one. This afternoon, after the Cabinet meeting, the ex-Secretary and Mr. Seward went out riding, and this, with other things, has given color to the report that Seward will leave the Cabinet by his own free will and accord, immediately.

The Herald's special says: It is stated that the President desires that all his Cabinet should send in their resignations, that he may make a general revision of his Council. Seward and M'Culloch are believed to be the last who will quite House.

The Times' special says: The President intimated to-night that he will soon tender the office of Secretary of War to a distinguished ex-General, of very decided opprobrious meaning Andrew, of Massachusetts.

The Tribune's special says: General Sheridan has written a letter to General Grant complaining bitterly of the conduct of General Rousseau, in New Orleans, and stating he exerted his influence with the rebel citizens to prevent the acceptance by them of Sheridan's construction of the Reconstruction acts, and also of his general demeanor towards Sheridan.

The Tribune's special says it is not true that Sheridan telegraphed for General Steedman to take Mr. Stanton's place.

GEN. GRANT AS SECRETARY OF WAR.

General Grant this morning formally entered upon the discharge of his duties as Secretary of War ad interim. Mr. Stanton was also at the Department to-day, engaged in turning over books and papers to Gen. Grant. Gen. Townsend, Adjutant General.

ORDER OF GEN. SICKLES REVOKED.

In consequence of the recent report of Major General Sickles, of the Fifth District, regarding the obstruction to the process of the United States Circuit Court, an order was issued to-day, by direction of the President, through Gen. Grant, addressed to Major General Sickles, instructing him that no order can be properly issued and enforced in conflict with the courts of the United States. This revokes order No. 10.

CONFLICT BETWEEN AMERICAN STEAMERS AND PIRATES.

LONDON, August 13.—Evening—Advices received from Shanghai give the following account of a conflict between two steamers of the American squadron, in Chinese waters, and pirates of the Island of Formosa. The United States authorities having received neither satisfaction nor apology for the murder of the crew of the American bark Rover, the men of war Hartford and Wyoming were ordered to the scene of outrage, on the Island of Formosa, and sailed early in June. On arriving off the shore, demand was made for the surrender of the murderers, which was not complied with. Meantime it was apparent the natives were preparing for a fight, and the shore was vigorously shelled by both vessels. Several boatloads of sailors and marines subsequently effected a landing, and a sharp fight ensued with the Formosans, which lasted over five hours. The heat was intense, and fifteen officers and men are reported to have been sun struck. Lieut. Stidell Mackenzie, one of the landing party, was shot and died of his wounds at nightfall. The fighting party were withdrawn and the bombardment was resumed and continued until the natives disappeared. The Hartford and Wyoming then weighed anchor and sailed for Shanghai, where they arrived on the 15th of June.

Among the general items of news from Shanghai, it is stated the Chinese merchants refuse to receive as currency Mexican dollars coined during the reign of Maximilian.

CONFLICT BETWEEN AMERICAN STEAMERS AND PIRATES.

LONDON, August 13.—Evening—Advices received from Shanghai give the following account of a conflict between two steamers of the American squadron, in Chinese waters, and pirates of the Island of Formosa. The United States authorities having received neither satisfaction nor apology for the murder of the crew of the American bark Rover, the men of war Hartford and Wyoming were ordered to the scene of outrage, on the Island of Formosa, and sailed early in June. On arriving off the shore, demand was made for the surrender of the murderers, which was not complied with. Meantime it was apparent the natives were preparing for a fight, and the shore was vigorously shelled by both vessels. Several boatloads of sailors and marines subsequently effected a landing, and a sharp fight ensued with the Formosans, which lasted over five hours. The heat was intense, and fifteen officers and men are reported to have been sun struck. Lieut. Stidell Mackenzie, one of the landing party, was shot and died of his wounds at nightfall. The fighting party were withdrawn and the bombardment was resumed and continued until the natives disappeared. The Hartford and Wyoming then weighed anchor and sailed for Shanghai, where they arrived on the 15th of June.

Among the general items of news from Shanghai, it is stated the Chinese merchants refuse to receive as currency Mexican dollars coined during the reign of Maximilian.

The latest advices from Japan, via Shanghai, report that the case of the ship Anna Kimball, seized for an infraction of the Commercial Treaty between China and the United States, had been satisfactorily settled.

UNITED STATES COURT.

The Venango County Counterfeiting Case—The Attempt to Suborn a Government Witness—Mr. Pierce, the Accused Counsel, Testifies—He Denounces De Haven, His Accuser—Singular Story About Masonry—Further Evidence on the Subject—Directly Contradictory Testimony—Case Not Concluded.

In the United States District Court, yesterday, the case of the Commonwealth vs. Alfred Meyers, of Venango county, indicted for counterfeiting National currency, was resumed before His Honor, Judge McCandless. The statements of the witness De Haven, concerning efforts made to induce him to swear contrary to the truth, caused the withdrawal of Ira H. Pierce, Esq., of Titusville, counsel for the defense, added considerably to the interest felt in the case, and attracted to the Court Room quite a considerable attendance of members of the city bar.

The case was resumed at ten o'clock, the defense calling witnesses.

S. L. Knapp, sworn—Am acquainted with the witness De Haven; had some conversation with him on Tuesday of last week; he stated that this Alfred Myers was not the man who had passed the counterfeit money at Johnston's; he said Myers was like the exchange for them. De Haven said his cousin told the banker to look at the coin carefully, as he (the cousin) had made it himself; that the banker took it, clipped one of the pieces on the counter, then saying that he would take all such kind of coin he could get. A note was given for it. A few days after they made more coin, tried it the second time, and the banker again pronounced it good, after bering into it with a knife. Then, said De Haven, he conceived the idea for the first time of the importance of being a Mason, and that he joined the Order for the bare purpose of dealing in counterfeit money. He went into the Lodge, and after taking the first degree could not see where the shield was; was told to "wait brother De Haven, the second degree will perhaps shield you better." He took the third degree, and when initiated thus he discovered that to be a Mason was to be an honorable man. [Marked sensation in Court.] His father having heard of this, told him that if he ever heard of his going into a Lodge again he would disown him. De Haven said he had never been inside of a Lodge since. They Masons were present in Court they would know the condition he was in. He never recognized him as a Mason. De Haven invited me to his room at the Red Lion Hotel, there recounted the story of his bad luck, and if there was any way he could be saved, and cried like a child. He said he had resolved to lead a different life and hoped to be an honorable man. I have since made up my mind that De Haven can shed tears upon any occasion. He alluded to the fact that he was concerned in the harvest of engines in the oil regions, and of avoiding punishment by swearing to forged bills of sale. He said he had stolen enough to stamp a man in crime. He said he had only a dollar when he came to attend Court, that his friends were refused bail, &c. Yesterday, and that the Government would not pay him. I then gave him some money. He came to my room on Sunday morning; said; said he had worn his shirt for a week, and wanted to get another one. I offered him one of mine. He thought it would not fit, and so I gave him five dollars. He asked me if Myers had instructed me to give his witnesses money as their fees, and I would have been quite likely to have given any man money under the circumstances. I have loaned different individuals money since I have been attending Court for Mr. Pierce here exhibited checks which he had cashed, and memoranda of money loaned to Captain Benson. He showed me a letter from Myers, and quite a number of others, including a slip of paper on which a note was made out for Myers for five dollars by De Haven. He also produced the statement of De Haven reduced to writing at the St. Charles Hotel, bearing it to Judge McCandless for perusal.]

Mr. Pierce next said that De Haven had sworn in his statements concerning him [Pierce] to a tissue of the most unmitigated falsehood." He had never said to De Haven that it would be improper for him to testify against a brother Mason, since he was assailed by bad men, and it was the duty of Myers' friends to defend him; it was quite easy to bring men down from Oil City to tell the jury how the matter was.

CROSS-EXAMINATION OF MR. PIERCE.

By Mr. Carnahan.—Did you tell De Haven that his obligation as a Mason compelled him to tell any thing not the truth? Answer—No, sir.

Did you tell him that his obligation as a Mason required him to swear that Myers, the defendant, was not the right man? Answer—I did not.

Mr. Pierce was then shown a five dollar bill, but the counsel could not identify it as the one he had given De Haven, as it was not marked by him.

Mr. Pierce referred to his having had a conversation relative to some suspicions against him of buying up witnesses. He said he had had a conversation with Mr. Carnahan; he told him that if there was anything against him, [Pierce] he was anxious to have it brought before the Court and settled, for if such a charge as that was allowed to remain against him unsolicited, he could not practice in any Court.

Mr. Carnahan stated that Mr. Pierce had manifested a disposition to have the fullest investigation.

By Mr. Carnahan—Mr. Pierce, on Tuesday of last week did you not propose to Mr. Price to take De Haven to a room and refuse to writing what he had said.

Mr. Carnahan—Then knowing that he was Government witness, you took De Haven to a room and did what you have stated.

Witness—De Haven said he was a witness for the Government, but that he could not swear as they wanted. Had a conversation with Charlie Johnston, in Erie; said to him, during a conversation about a man named Myers, that his chances for conviction of Myers could help him, Johnston.

A. B. Richmond, sworn—Been practicing law for twenty years; Mr. Pierce associated with me; he has not yet been admitted to the Supreme Court; never saw De Haven until on the occasion of the trial of Johnston in Erie, at which quite a number (over twenty) of witnesses, his neighbors, testified that he was a thief and a liar; I came here to defend Myers; on this case, and stopped at the St. Charles; there I was introduced to De Haven by Mr. Carter, and had a conversation; talked about the case; told him that what I had said in Erie did not arise from anything personal. Some way it was understood that Myers, the defendant, was not present at the time he was

RAILROAD BRIDGE AT ST. LOUIS.

As the great railroad lines reach the Mississippi above the mouth of the Missouri there is no hesitation about throwing bridges across it. There are several of these bridges, and just now they are building one at Quincy, which is, so far, the lowest down of any.

But St. Louis is below the mouth of the Missouri, where the depth and volume of water is vastly increased. To construct a bridge across the river there is a very different affair from that of bridging the comparatively shallow Upper Missisaippi; and until recently the enterprise has been regarded as on the verge of the impossible. Science and money, however, under the pressure of necessity, can accomplish anything that is not absolutely impracticable; so the combined interests of the railroads centering at St. Louis, together with the public spirited citizens of that opulent town, have undertaken the work, and laid their plans on a scale of grandeur unequalled by any other structure of the kind in the world. The following notice of this bridge we find in a leading article in the North American of Monday:

The St. Louis bridge will be in many respects the greatest wonder, in the bridge line, of the present day, as well by reason of its length and height above the river, as of the huge steel arches and the monster tunnel that are to form parts of it. This vast structure is intended to connect the long lines of railroad reaching Illinoistown from Baltimore and Philadelphia with the Pacific Railroad of Missouri, and so make the connection with the Great Union Pacific Railroad, now building across the wilderness to California. Without the completion of this bridge the working of the through line will be imperfect, as it is impossible to transship across the river all the freight and passenger business of a highway such as this is destined to be. It is, therefore, essential to the plans of most of the great railroads that this bridge should be built at once, that it should be of a solid and substantial character, and able to bear any amount of strain that may be put upon it. It is for this reason that the arches are to be of steel ribs, but the span of these arches, between 400 and 500 feet each, will be immense.

Entering St. Louis, the roadway will cross one street above grade by a bridge, but it will then plunge into the earth in the centre of a block, and, burrowing through a long tunnel, reach the railroad depot without appearing again to the public. It will thus be seen that by this bridge the trains from the east will enter the heart of St. Louis underground, and deliver freight and passengers without any of the interruptions usual to city terminal roads. Of all the great public enterprises undertaken by various cities, this seems to us to be in all respects the most important. The bridge itself will be in its construction a great novelty, while its identification with the grand through line of railway from Philadelphia to San Francisco must give it a character above all other bridges, and direct public attention to it at once. It is a real necessity, and the railroad companies concerned in the through route are so much in want of such a connection, that it will be pushed ahead without a moment's delay, and finished long before any of the other great bridges now talked about.

The North American justly characterizes the construction of a bridge over the Mississippi at St. Louis a necessity. The Union Pacific Railway of the Kansas, which is destined to be the great national highway to the Pacific, is opening up a region of incalculable resources and value. By means of the bridge now building at Quincy, and another across the Missouri at Kansas City, Chicago will have at once an uninterrupted connection with that road, of uniform guage, and thus the entire system of roads converging at Chicago will be united with that road. Trains may be run from New York, or Boston, or Portland, or Philadelphia, or Baltimore, or Pittsburgh, by way of Chicago, to the farthest extremity of that road. There would be no break in the line in any place. Thus, although the country is mainly indebted to the enterprise of the capitalists of St. Louis for the Union Pacific Railway of the Kansas, that city, without a bridge, would be thrown off the unbroken line of its eastern connections. To it, therefore, that bridge is an imperative necessity.

But to Pennsylvania, and its two principal cities, it is almost equally a necessity; for St. Louis, rather than Chicago, is on our natural and most direct line of commercial intercourse. Give us a bridge at St. Louis, and it will be a virtual extension of our own magnificent Pennsylvania Central entirely across the continent by the smoothest, the richest, and the most salubrious route that exists. As beyond the Mississippi we believe the Kansas route will be the most popular and the most successful, so on this side we are satisfied that the Peansylvania route will be the same thing. But to all this a bridge at St. Louis is essential.

ROME.

There is at present a very feverish state of feeling in Italy on the subject of Rome, and nothing but the strong hand of NAPOLEON prevents an outbreak both among the people of the Papal States and of Italy in general. The former have a strong desire to be citizens of united Italy and enjoy that liberty which they cannot have as they are; while the latter feel that the unity of Italy is not complete so long as Rome is not embraced in it. They are ambitious to have the renowned capital of the ancient Roman Empire for the capital of their country, so long broken up into petty principalities and dukedoms, but now united. GARIBALDI has his plans matured and his forces organized, and only awaits his opportunity. VICTOR EMANUEL could not restrain him if he would, and very probably he would not if he could. Cardinal ANTONELLI complains that the attitude of the Italian Government is greatly at variance with the engagements which have been made with the Pope. A pressure may soon come which even NAPOLEON may find it hazardous to resist; and if so, that adroit politician, who has no real love for the Pope, can easily shift his policy to suit the new phase of affairs in Italy.

THE SUSPENSION OF STANTON.

The President is madder than we supposed he was, and has suspended Secretary STANTON. The selection of General GRANT to take charge of the office in the interim, as Acting Secretary of War, will not be objected to, and the very cordial and flattering note of the General to Mr. STANTON, apprising him officially of his appointment, is alike creditable to both these gentlemen.

The fact that Messrs. SEWARD and STANTON rode out in company in the afternoon is significant; and it would not be surprising if there should ere long be a general rupture of the Cabinet. It is said that Mr. STANTON expects to be restored by Congress.

THE Dispatch of yesterday says.

CONSOLIDATION.—The GAZETTE and Post have "hitched teams" on the consolidation question, and their columns now teem with communications against the measure. If we have ever had any doubts of the success of consolidation, the course of these journals in lending their columns to secure its defeat has dispelled them. With the Post and GAZETTE battling against it, the measure is bound to go through.

This is not true. We have opened our columns to the discussion of this important question pro and con; but that the GAZETTE is battling against the measure is an assertion which the writer of the paragraph knew to be false when he penned it.

ST. LOUIS exults over the arrest of the "short" sellers in Chicago, alleging that the great business in grain transacted in that city is on a paper foundation, the operators selling in large quantities that which they have not yet.

A VIGOROUS raid has been made by the authorities of Cincinnati on the gambling hells of that city.

The Tomb of Lincoln—The old Lincoln Homestead—The Whereabouts of the Lincoln Family.

Two years ago the place inherited a sad and peculiar glory in becoming the burial place of Abraham Lincoln; and ever since his tomb has been the resort of thousands of his countrymen and countrywomen. No stranger thinks of passing through Springfield without visiting the sepulchre, and many come to Springfield for that express purpose.

Oak Ridge Cemetery, where the honored remains repose, is scarce a mile from the State House. Horse cars convey visitors thither every half hour, the route following a leading street until the latter turns into a country road, and then fades into an undeveloped, ungraded avenue; and at this point the railroad deftly switches aside, passing through a grove of shady oaks into the public park. Just beyond this is the cemetery—an umbrageous, undulating tract, which already contains a number of graves. The Lincoln tomb is in a prominent position on the brow of a rounded knoll. It is a vault with a simple front of plain brick, faced with unpolished white marbles, the wings at each side bearing empty marble vases, the only feature of adornment that this unpretending mortuary structure possesses. The doorway consists of two large slabs of marble cemented together and to the wall of the sepulchre; and the only inscription is the one word,

LINCOLN.

The grass is growing luxuriantly over the roof the vault, and a young oak tree has found place to take root amid this grass, while larger trees shade the spot in the rear.

In its quiet, old-fashioned simplicity, the tomb of Lincoln reminds one strongly of that of Washington, at Mount Vernon, and there seems to be a beautiful (though probably an accidental) consistency in the fact that the two Presidents who most thoroughly won the affections of the people and secured the most prominent pages of history, should be similarly entombed. The tomb on the prairie and the tomb by the Potomac! What a grand procession of human beings will for ages to come pause before their unpretending portals!

At the foot of the Lincoln tomb, there is a notice announcing "$5 fine to write upon or deface this tomb, or to pluck wild flowers in these grounds." Yet, regardless of this well-meaning, if ungrammatical injunction, and in defiance of all rules of decency, divers shabby wretches have already scrawled their names upon the brick-work, and even upon the marble floor of the tomb. These miserable egotists hail chiefly from the west, though Philadelphia is disgraced by one of them. Were there any from New York, their names would appear here in full.

At first Mr. Lincoln's remains were placed in a receiving vault, where the coffin, visible through the iron grating, was always covered with fragrant flowers. For a year this place of interment was under charge of a military guard, which was dispensed with after the removal of the body to its present resting place. A plot of ground eight acres in extent has been secured in the immediate vicinity of the tomb, as a site for a suitable Lincoln monument, but many years may pass before it is built.

The Lincoln house is, next to the tomb, the object of greatest interest to strangers. It is still owned by the Lincolns, and is occupied by Mr. Tilton, who, with his family, preserves with reverent care the homestead of the fallen chieftain, and kindly permits visitors to examine the interior. When the trouble and inevitable annoyance of thus receiving any one who may choose to call are considered, the cordiality of the permission given renders the public a real debtor to the Tiltons. On the day of the funeral in Springfield no less than fifteen hundred persons an hour passed through the house, and visits are now of daily occurrence.

At the sale of Mr. Lincoln's furniture, the Tiltons purchased several important pieces, among them his book-case and writing-desk, wherein is now a book for visitors to register their names. The parlor on the walls is the same as when Mr. Lincoln lived there, but the furniture is, of course, different. Among the many interesting souvenirs of the late President is a preserved wreath and shield of flowers, laid upon his coffin by the ladies of New York and Pennsylvania, and a fac simile of the Emancipation Proclamation.

Some time ago Laura Keene, the actress, who, it will be remembered, ran to the President's box immediately after Booth's fatal shot, and supported Lincoln's head, came to Springfield, and visited the homestead. She brought with her the very dress she wore on that eventful night, with the stains of the President's blood upon it, and cutting out a piece, presented it to Mrs. Tilton. There it is now in the Lincoln House, in its little glass frame, with Laura Keene's autograph beneath it, and the words, "The blood of the martyred President," above—a fragment of light flowered beige, discolored by the fearful stain of murder. Vividly indeed do such sad relics—though really unimportant they may be—vividly do they recall the incidents of the never-to-be-forgotten tragedy of that Good Friday night of 1865.

The widow of President Lincoln has never visited the old home in Springfield. She said she could never summon up nerve to do so. A year or so ago she came to the town, and, quite alone, went to the St. Nicholas, then the leading hotel of the place. Dressed in black and hidden by a long, thick, mourning veil, she was not at first recognized; but on disclosing her name, received all the attentions due her former position and her misfortunes.

Mrs. Lincoln took up her residence for a while in Chicago, but does not seem disposed to remain there permanently, as she has sold out her furniture, and is staying for the summer at a hotel in Racine, Wisconsin. Mr. Robert Lincoln is practicing law in Chicago; and thus none of the Lincoln family remain in Springfield, a town which will henceforth owe its chief celebrity to the fact that it was the home of the head of that family.—New York Evening Post.

Big Trees in Missouri.

It is popularly supposed that California has the biggest trees in the world, but Professor Swallow, of the Missouri Geological Survey, claims the distinction for his own State. He gives the following actual measurement of big trees in Southern Missouri:

"The largest is a sycamore in Mississippi county, sixty-five feet high, which, two feet above the ground, measures forty-three feet in circumference. Another sycamore in Howard county is thirty-eight feet in diameter. A cypress in Cape Girardeau county, at a distance of one foot above the ground, measures twenty-nine feet in circumference. A cottonwood in Mississippi county measures thirty feet round, at a distance of six feet above the ground. A pecan in the same county is eighteen feet in circumference. A black walnut in Benton county measures twenty-two feet in circumference. A white oak in Howard county is twenty-six feet in circumference. A tulip tree (poplar) in Cape Girardeau county is thirty feet in circumference. There is a tupelo in Stoddard county thirty feet in circumference. There is a hackberry in Howard county eleven feet in circumference. A Spanish oak in New Madrid county is twenty-six feet in circumference. A white ash in Mississippi county is sixteen feet in circumference. A honey locust in Howard county is thirteen feet round. There is a willow in Pemiscot county that has grown to the size of twenty-four feet in circumference and one hundred feet in height. Mississippi county boasts of a sassafras that must be king of that tribe; it measures nine feet in circumference. There is a persimmon in the same county nine feet in circumference. In the same county is a red bud six feet in circumference. In Pemiscot county there is a dogwood six feet in circumference. In Mississippi county pawpaws grow to a circumference of three feet, and grape vine and trumpet creepers to a circumference of eighteen to twenty-two inches."

Cape May.

Before the war Cape May was one of the most popular of all the sea-side resorts, sharing the public favor with Saratoga and Newport, which, with this, made the trio of famous watering places every one was supposed to visit during the season. The Cape seems to have lost its attractions as well as its rivals. The hotels are no longer crowded, nor the surf studded with bathers, nor the beach thronged with showy vehicles and handsome horses. One need not telegraph or write, weeks before coming, to secure rooms. He can get them any time, to-day, to-morrow, next week.

The Cape is really more agreeable as a place of sojourn than I have ever known it, from the absence of crowd or confusion. The weather has been unusually cool for the season, and the sun does not glare so fiercely as is its wont on the superabundant sand on which this place is constructed. I employ the term "constructed," for there seems to be no naturalness about it, as there never does about seaside resorts. They bear the same relation to an ordinary village or settlement of any kind that a rude bathing house near the surf does to a tree in the forest. There are some six or seven public houses here. They are hardly half full, the landlords say; but I should judge they have not much more than a quarter of the number they could comfortably accommodate. The proportion of guests at the smaller hotels is still less, and on the whole, it is evident, on every hand, that the Cape is no longer what it was. It is thought this month will swell the list of arrivals, and that those who come late will linger through September, likely to be warm this year.

—A letter from Buenos Ayres says the wool clip this year will 100,000,000 pounds, and that the recent rise in the tariff of the United States has produced great dismay among the wool-growers. But, fortunately, for some years great efforts have been made to refine the wools of that country, and, in proportion, the finest wools pay less duty. No wools will go to the United States this year but those that are fine and clean. The shearing this year would begin October 1. The wool bids fair to be finer, cleaner, freer from burs, and of better color than ever before. By a comparison of the merchant fleets of the different nations, it seems that northern Germany stands third on the list. Great Britain, with her colonies, has about seven million tons; the United States have five million, and northern Germany one million, three hundred and forty thousand tons. France has 985,000 tons; Italy, 695,000; Netherlands, 510,000; Spain, 276,000; Austria, 233,000; Sweden and Norway 176,000, and Denmark 140,000.

—The rag pickers of Paris are very numerous, very poor, and until quite recently, utterly neglected by philanthropic people. A few years since, a French lady and her husband were stirred up by some earnest words of an English clergymen on behalf of these poor, ignorant creatures. They soon found their way to the cite des chiffoniers, as it is called—a miserable collection of hovels, outside the fortifications of Paris, where the rag pickers live and, by much effort, succeeded in interesting a few children in being taught to read! They began their school in the open air; but, after a while, hired one of the hovels. This was soon crowded, and a room in a neighboring house was hired, to be, in turn, crowded. Two or three rooms were added; and now as many as ninety women and girls are gathered there from day to day, to be taught to read, to sew, and generally to be well informed and well behaved christians.

SIGNS OF RAIN.—Just before rain, flowers smell stronger and sweeter, because the vapors of the air prevent the scented particles of their perfume from ascending, as they would in a drier atmosphere. Instead of rising above the earth, the odor is disseminated by the moisture. Because the plants are stronger in fragrance just before a fall of rain, we see horses stretch out their necks and snuff the air in a peculiar manner. Animals are more observing than man, and nature speaks to them in a silent manner. They thus are able to prognosticate the coming storm with unerring certainty, while man often stands bewildered and lost in doubt.

—Some very amusing and rather tough stories are told of the political canvass in Kentucky. One of them is related by the Frankfort Commonwealth. It says: "We learn that one of the rebel democratic candidates for representative in this county, in one of his speeches, recently accused his competitor with having furnished the United States Government with horses to be used in putting down the rebellion. The accused hurly replied that he had a contract to furnish horses to the Government; that he had so arranged the place and time of their delivery as to secure their capture by John Morgan, who was then on a raid in Kentucky.

—On Sunday afternoon there occurred an accident, resulting in the death of a son of John Haight, residing half a mile West of Coldwater, near Rocheile. The lad had climbed a white ash tree to the height of sixty feet, when losing his hold of a limb, he fell the ground and was crushed. He expired in two hours from the time of his falling. He was eight years of age. A companion was on a higher limb of the tree than Haight, and when the Haight boy fell and uttered a piercing scream, the boy was so frightened that he lost his hold and fell some ten feet, when he clutched a limb, and was saved from a horrible death.

—The soldiers of the Army of the Cumberland, and those who enjoyed the hospitalities of Libby in the fall of 1863, will be pained to learn of the sudden death of Brevet Colonel Alexander Von Shroeder, so well known as Inspector General on the staffs of Major General Rosecrans and George H. Thomas. A European officer of experience and reputation, he served faithfully in our armies through the entire war, suffering, after the battle of Chickamauga, where he had been taken by the enemy while carrying an order, the fate of prisoners under the government of Belle Isle and Andersonville.

—Away up among the White Mountains, where it is said they grind the sheep's noses before sending them out to pasture in the morning, a Reverend Doctor, from Boston, found a man on the shady side of fifty hoeing his living out of the barren hills. Introducing himself, he soon succeeded in exciting in the old man the Yankee propensity, to ask questions, first among which was: "Where d'ye hail from?" Answering that he was from Boston, the old man of the hoe replied: "Wy, I would think ye'd like to live away off there!"

COE'S DYSPEPSIA CURE

is prepared by the originator of the justly celebrated Coe's Cough Balsam. Mr. Coe has never pretended to medicinal articles for public and general use but what has stood the strongest tests, and has always borne the palm of victory over every disease it has been compared together. Will you who are suffering from dyspepsia, indigestion, nausea, sick headache, cholera morbus, dysentery and general debility of the whole system, try her as a last gle bottle? We will never give you again if we fail in this case. Our word is the pledge of its merits, the united testimony of all who have ever tried it, the experience of hundreds of our own neighbors, your duty to yourself and the beneficial results, as certain as sunshine, if you fearlessly, persistently urge upon to try just one bottle. If what we say is not correct—if our statements concerning its wonderful virtues are not found to be true—if you do not say that the operation of the medicine is instantaneous and wonderful—we will reimburse our professions as caterers to the public health, and retire from the field, admitting that we are incompetent to compound a medicinal preparation which would be entitled to your confidence.

THE POISONS OF THE DAY.

The late temperance investigations in Massachusetts have thrown a flood of light on the notorious abuses practiced in the liquor trade, and have at the same time demonstrated the absolute necessity for unadulterated diffusive stimulants for medicinal purposes. Clergymen of the highest standing, men of the highest rank in science, an d philanthropists, who are above the reach of prejudice, have testified not only to the pernicious effects of the adulterated liquors of commerce, but also the efficacy of uncontaminated alcoholic bodies as remedial and restorative agents.

First on the list of this class of preparations, best known and most extensively used in all the stomachics of the day, stands HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. A black walnut in Benton county measures twenty-two feet in circumference. A white oak in Howard county is twenty-six feet in circumference. A tulip tree (poplar) in Cape Girardeau county is thirty feet in circumference. There is a tupelo in Stoddard county thirty feet in circumference. CURE OF FISTULA.

DR. KEYSER: I write to thank you for your kindness and scientific management of my disease, for which I called to consult you some time in January last. You will remember that I had a complication of diseases, which finally ended in a terrible fistula, which I had been advised to "let alone" on account of a harassing cough, which was feared might fasten on my lungs. I knew that the popular mode of treating such cases like mine was by a cutting operation, which, if successful at all, would naturally throw the disease upon the lungs or some other vital organ, on account of the suddenness of the cure and the immediate check to a discharge which I was constrained to believe was a salutary provision of Nature to get rid of some morbid condition in the system. I feel perfectly satisfied that your method of treatment, purifying to the system, and local applications to the fistulous part, must cure, if anything could, without cutting, which I find it did, and I am happy to report myself well in every particular, with sounder and better health than I have had for years. I would also add that the applications you made were almost painless, and have left me a new man, with all the energies an vigor of restored health.

Dr. Keyser's consultation rooms are No. 120 Penn street, from 9 A. M. until 4 p. m.

Attempted Outrage—Arrest of the Parties.

A villainous but unsuccessful attempt was made on Saturday night, by four fiends in human shape, to outrage the person of a young married woman. They were only prevented from accomplishing their hellish purpose by their own guilty fears. The attempt was one of the most daring we ever heard of, and the parties who have been arrested, if guilty, should be punished to the full extent of the law.

A number of young men and ladies were assembled at a house in Baldwin township, Saturday evening, and among the parties were a couple who had been lately married. After passing a pleasant evening, up to a late hour in the night, the party broke up, each starting for their respective homes. The newly married couple and a brother of the bride were quietly proceeding homeward, and had gone a considerable distance from the house when they were met in the road by four men, who immediately attacked them, knocking the husband and brother down, and taking hold of the woman, preventing her from screaming by holding her clothes over her mouth. They attempted to outrage her person, and would have succeeded had they not become alarmed at their own noise, when they relinquished their damnable intentions and fled. The fiends, it appears, were recognized, and an information was made on Friday before Justice Michael Lipp against Mick Myer, J. Hoffman, Peter Eagaier, and John Baldoff, for whom warrants were issued and placed in the hands of officers Hartzell and Mulhall, by whom all but the latter were arrested. After a partial hearing they were held in the sum of eight hundred dollars each for a further hearing on Friday.

Perjury—Pensioner Arrested and Held to Bail.

Mrs. Dena Winder alias Scott, was arrested yesterday, charged, on oath of Major James McGregor, Pension Agent in this city with willful and corrupt perjury. It appears that the defendant was married to Andrew Scott, who enlisted in the United States service during the late war, and was either killed or died in the service. She made application for a pension, and her claim was granted on June 23d, 1866, to commence July 31st 1864, the first payment, amounting to $153 07, having been made on the 16th of July. Since that time, on September 5th, and on March 5th, she has received $96 in semi-annual payments. The regulations of the pension office directs the pensioner at the time of receiving payment, to make affidavit to the effect (in case of a widow) that she is the identical person named in the certificate, and that she has not again married, but continues the widow of the deceased husband. Some time subsequent to the date of the last payment it was ascertained by Major McGregor that the defendant was married to John Winder, of Fayette county, in 1865, almost a year prior to the date of the pension certificate. After a hearing before United States Commissioner McCandless, she was held in the sum of one thousand dollars for her appearance at the next term of the United States Court.

Larceny of a Purse.

Rev. J. D. McFarland, residing in Jefferson township, made information before His Honor Mayor Morrison, against Sarah McKenna, charging her with larceny. It appears that, sometime since, the defendant was employed in the family of the prosecutor as a domestic, and that subsequent to her leaving the family a valuable and curiously wrought portmonnaie, containing quite a collection of rare and valuable gold and silver coins, the property of Mr. McFarland, had disappeared. Suspicion attached to the girl from circumstances connected with her departure, she having asked and obtained permission to visit some friends in Allegheny, promising to return in a few days, but failing to do so. The portmonnaie being been presented to Mr. McFarland was gained very highly by him, and every effort was made to induce the girl to return it, but all to no purpose, as she flatly denied having it. She was arrested, and had a hearing, which resulted in her being committed to jail yesterday morning to await trial at Court. She was also accused of having stolen a dress pattern, valued at $20, from a girl named Annie McIlvaine, which has since been recovered and a commitment lodged against her.

A Fight in Limerick.

John Kelley made information before Alderman McMasters, yesterday, against Mary Sullivan, Mary Laughlin, Margaret Sullivan and Mary Connelley, charging them with assault and battery. He alleges that he was at the house of Sullivan, in "Limerick" on Sunday evening, and that he was then and there attacked by the defendants, who beat and abused him in a shameful manner. There is, however, another side to the affair, which looks a little more plausible than the tale John would have the people believe. The defendants say that Kelley came to the house of Mrs. Sullivan on Sunday evening and asked for a drink of whisky, which was refused. He became highly indignant, and even went so far as to attack Mrs. S., who he beat shamefully, and the girls, two of whom are daughters of Mrs. S., interfered and put him out of the house.

He also made information against Mrs. Sullivan charging her with selling liquor without license. Warrants were issued in both cases, the parties arrested and held for a hearing.

False Pretense.

Peter Minaman appeared before Alderman Mullin, yesterday, and made information against Nicholas Bennett, charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses. He alleges that the accused represented to him that he was the Lieutenant of the Grant Fire Company and that he was collecting money to repair the hose carriage of the company, which had been damaged at a recent fire, and promising, in consideration of the ten dollars, to secure the prosecutor the position of driver for the company. He, it seems, was green enough to be gulled by such representations and forked over the stamps, verifying the old saying "a fool and his money are soon parted." He waited for many days for the position promised him, but hearing nothing from his friend in regard to the matter he went to the engine house to see about it, when he first learned that he had been the victim of misplaced confidence to the tune of ten dollars, as he was informed that Bennett did not belong to the company and had no authority to collect money for it. A warrant was issued for the arrest of the defendant.

A Big Jump.

As the Independence Hose carriage was on the way to the fire yesterday, a team of two mules were driven out of O'Hara street on Penn, immediately in front of the horse attached to the hose carriage, which was traveling at a break-neck pace. He was too close to the mules to stop, and his only alternative was to jump over, as he was too large to run under them. He attempted the jump, and cleared one mule but fell across the back of the second. Both mules were knocked down by the shock, and for a time there was a terrible mixup of horse, mules and hose carriage, which were all in a pile together. They were finally extricated with no further damage than the cutting of a few straps, which was found necessary to cut, to enable them to get clear of the mule team received a slight kick on the leg from one of his animals, but it was not of a serious nature.

Assault With Intent to Commit Rape.

Miss Marianna Lensler, a young woman residing in the Fourth ward, Allegheny, was assaulted on Tuesday of last week by Daniel Einstein, who attempted to outrage her person, but was foiled in his purpose by the screams of the girl, which he feared might bring the neighbors into the house, it appears that Einstein is the Uncle of a son of a brother of Einstein's, and that Einstein boarded in the house. The family being absent on Tuesday, and no one in the house but himself and the girl, he made the attempt as above stated. She made information against him before Justice Ayers that evening, but the officers were unable to get hold of him until Saturday, when he was arrested and held in the sum of $1,000 for a further hearing. He will have to get the reward his conduct so justly merits.

"Bride of a Night."

An information was made before His Honor Mayor Morrison, of Allegheny, yesterday, against Isaac Crawford, a resident of Allegheny, charging him with deserting and abandoning his wife. It appears that some time since Mr. Crawford was necessitated to marry a Miss Prophator, of Allegheny, with whom he remained one night, and then deserted her, returning no more forever. He managed to keep out of the sight of the injured wife and her friends until within a few days ago, when he was arrested at the instance of the girl's father. He says that he was compelled to marry the woman, and that he did not intend to live with her. After a hearing he was held in the sum of three hundred dollars for his appearance at Court. She had better let him slide, procure a divorce, and then get another husband.

Disturbed His Slumbers.

Henry W. Hook resides on East Common, Allegheny city, and like many other good citizens is sorely grieved and vexed in spirit with troublesome neighbors, who, regardless of the comforts of Mr. Hook, persist in all the petty annoyances imaginable to disturb his peace in the community, and even go so far as to disturb his slumbers, by "making night hideous with their unearthly brawls." These troublesome neighbors are none other than John Walts and wife, and Mr. Hook having endured his grievances until "forbearance has ceased to be a virtue" appeals to the law for protection. He made information before Alderman Mullin, yesterday, against Mr. and Mrs. Wain, charging them with breach of the peace. Warrants were issued.

Pleasant Affair.

A delightful and pleasant pic-nic was given on Monday at Washington Park, Troy Hill, by the choir of St. Paul's German Protestant Church, of Allegheny City, Rev. Wertenbaasen, pastor, the proceeds of which are to be appropriated to the organ fund of the Church. The day was pleasant, the attendance large, while peace and harmony reigned supreme throughout the day, making the occasion one of the most pleasant of the season. No class of people know better how to enjoy themselves on such occasions than our German citizens.

Committed.—William Siebert, the boy whose arrest we noticed last week, charged with committing an outrage on the person of Elizabeth Mertinger, a little girl of six years of age, had a hearing yesterday before Alderman Taylor, which resulted in his being committed to jail, in default of the required bail, for his appearance at Court to answer the charge.

Wrong Name.—In noticing a case of disorderly conduct, which a boy named Ryan had before Alderman Oswton, on Saturday, we stated that Mrs. Reese was the prosecutor. So the name appears on the record, but we are informed by a friend that her name is Morgan. Her name was formerly Reese, but she has lately married Mr. Morgan. The M. D. who acted as attorney for the prosecutor, is responsible for the error, as he gave the name as Reese to to the Alderman.

Fire—An alarm of fire was sounded from box 52, corner of Pride street and Pennsylvania Avenue, between ten and eleven o'clock yesterday morning, caused by a slight fire in the rear of Sawyer's soap factory, on Pennsylvania Avenue, near Pride street. The fire department turned out promptly, but did not reach the ground in time to be of any service, as the fire was extinguished before their arrival.

Accident—On Sunday, a gentleman at the Tarentum camp meeting, took four little girls in his carriage and started off for a drive. He had proceeded but a short distance from the camp grounds when his horse took fright and ran over a bank, capsizing the carriage and throwing the children a considerable distance down the hill. One of the little girls had her shoulder bone broken, and the others were considerably bruised and scratched, but not seriously injured.

The New York stock quotations to-day, as received by Mr. P. R. Mertz, were as follows: Gold, 140¾; Eighty-one bonds, 111¾; Five Twenties, 1862, 113¾; Five Twenties, 1864, 110; Five Twenties, 1865, 110¾; Consols 108¾; Seven Thirties, 107⅝@107¾; Ten Forties, 102⅝. Stocks—Erie Railroad, 79; Cleveland & Pittsburgh, 93½; Chicago and Rock Island, 102¾; Chicago and Northwestern, 46¾; Chicago and Northwestern preferred, 69¾; Fort Wayne Railroad, 105; Michigan Southern Railroad, 81; New York Central, 104¼; Reading, 104¾; Western Union Telegraph Company, 45¾; Ohio and Mississippi, 27½; Mining shares—Corydon, 1,10@1,15; Gregory, 6,50; Quartz Hill, 1,70; Smith & Paramalee, 5,25; Quicksilver, 31¾.

The gold market is excited, and 141 was reached, but at the close the market settled on 140¾, with a light demand except for custom house purposes. The Government is selling daily its receipts from customs, and this keeps the market easy. The exchange market is dull, and round lots of sixty day bills are offered at about ¼ per cent. below specie rates Cotton is already shipping, and the crop appears to be much larger than was anticipated, and the disposition among planters is to hasten it to market before the large shipments from India and Brazil arrive. Thus the shipments of specie would be below the average of the last ten years, and with reduced imports we may gradually approach specie payment within a few years.

Government securities are lower for the Seven Thirty bonds, but firm on old Five Twenties and Eighty-one's. As far as can be ascertained, the Government will exchange Seven Thirties of the August issue up to the 16th inst.; after that the currency will be paid for the face and interest. Railroad shares are firm at yesterday's quotations, but the dealings are light.

Mining shares are recovering, and the speculative shares are held firm. Money is scarce, and during the next few days rates will be high for any long loans.

Closing New York quotations received by James T. Brady & Co.:

—The Chicago Tribune, in an answer to a question, says that in that city "the banks make no charge for collecting a draft made payable with exchange, though in some places such a charge is made. Some of the banks in New England and all in Canada make a charge for collection where the draft is made payable with exchange. In the west the custom does not prevail, except in isolated cases. The banks in the west consider the profit accruing from the sale of the exchange needed in remitting a sufficient recompense for the trouble in making the collection."

—National banks now pay the following taxes: A license tax of $50 for $50,000 capital, and $2 a thousand upon excess of capital over $50,000; a semi-annual tax of ½ of 1 per cent. upon average amount of circulation; a semi-annual tax of ¼ of 1 per cent. upon the average amount of deposits; a semi-annual tax of ¼ of 1 per cent. upon the average amount of capital stock, less amount invested in United States bonds. A National bank is also required to pay 5 per cent. upon all dividends and surplus added. In case of neglect to pay dividends, a tax of 5 per cent. on profits.

National banks making out tax returns can not deduct from capital stock, as United States bonds, Seven Thirties, compound interest notes, or certificates of indebtedness.

—Of the grain trade of the lake ports the Toledo Blade remarks: "The early shipments of wheat from this port created quite a furore among eastern millers, and the rapidity with which orders have since arrived betoken a very active trade during the fall. The quality of the grain is the best ever shipped from the west, and not a particle inferior to the best ever grown on the Continent; in fact, it could not be better. The splendid quality, together with the prolific yield through the country tributary to Toledo, will make this a favorite point with eastern buyers, and will entitle it to a great extent monopolize the trade in winter wheat for the next twelve months at least."

—The Chicago Tribune, of Monday, says: The wheat harvest is progressing finely, and the receipts to-day—over 52,000 bushels—proclaim the ease of abundance that is about to again make its appearance. The money market is quiet easy, and first-class paper, with undoubted collaterals, experiences no difficulty in obtaining recognition at the discount houses. The country banks were checking more freely on their balances here, and on some of the depository banks the Treasury Department drew for large amounts.

—The movement of specie is attracting some attention, especially as our California supply falls short of last year. We observe that the shipments of specie from New York to foreign ports in July were larger than the whole of the previous six months receipts from California, and this a New York cotemporary attributes to the speculators and exporters, who clamor for sales of gold from the Treasury. It is held that the letting out of gold from the Sub-Treasury is in encouragement of its export, and that the Secretary had far better hold on to his accumulation. The receipts of gold at New York from California in the seven months of the current year to the 1st instant, were $15,972,824, and from foreign ports in the same time, $1,513,302—making a total of receipts of $17,486,126. The exports to foreign ports in the same time amounted to $338,316,556—showing a loss since the first of the year of $20,828,430—and of these heavy exports over one third of the total was shipped during the month of July. As the sales of gold from the Treasury have been mainly during the last and present month, the export of coin is charged directly to the suicidal policy of thus throwing gold on the market.—Phila. Ledger.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET

CRUDE—The market was more active today, the sales being considerably larger, in the aggregate, than on Monday, but prices are no better. Spot oil, that is for round lots, in tank, is still held at 12@12½c, but there are no buyers at these figures at present, and consequently, we have no sales to report. Barreled oil continues exceedingly dull, and is offered freely at 10½c, and possibly, might be had at 10c, but, apparently, there are no buyers. There is still some inquiry for future delivery, as will be seen by the sales below noted. At Oil City, the market was reported dull to-day, and 9@9.10 were given as the nominal price. Sales of

2000 bbls for November, seller's option	11c

REFINED—There was also more activity in bonded oil to-day, the sales being larger in the aggregate than for some days past, but prices, if anything, are a shade lower. Spot oil sold at 27¾, September at 30½, and the last four months, buyer's option, at 31—notwithstanding we heard of an offer to buy at 32c for the same delivery. The transactions in bonded oil have been comparatively light for some days past, and are likely to be for some days to come, as our refiners do not seem willing at present to contract very freely at present prices. The sales were:

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

The general markets present no new features worthy of special notice. The demand for most of the leading commodities of trade is restricted mainly to supplying immediate wants, while prices generally are without quotable change.

GRAIN—Wheat is quiet but steady at $2,12@2,15 for prime Penna and Ohio Red. Oats continue to meet with a fair demand at unchanged prices, 75@76c for small lots of prime old in store. Corn is firm and in demand, and may be quoted at $1,02@1,05, on track and in elevator. Rye is nominal at $1,10@1,15. No movement in Barley.

FLOUR—The Flour market is more active, the local demand having improved considerably, but, as yet, prices remain unchanged. We continue to quote at $11@11.50 for old Spring, and new Winter Wheat brands, and $12@12.25 for new Tennessee. Fancy brands are selling at $14 to $15, and Rye Flour at $8,25.

MILL FEED—Sale of 4 tons Bran at $1,20; 4 tons Shorts at $1,30, and 3 tons Seconds at $1,65. Middlings may be quoted, in the absence of sales, at $2.

PROVISIONS—Bacon is quiet but steady, with regular jobbing sales at 12¾c for Shoulders; 14¼@15½c for Ribbed and Clear Sides, and 21@21½c for Sugar Cured Hams. Lard is quiet but steady at 13@13½c, in tierces, and 14c in kegs. No change in Dried Beef, and nothing doing in Mess Pork.

BUTTER—There is quite an active demand for prime fresh pail and firkin Butter, and prices have still further advanced, sales having been made to-day at 23c. Common packed is dull and neglected.

POTATOES—Continue very dull, notwithstanding the supply in the hands of produce dealers is light, and the arrivals by rail are limited. It would appear that the market gardeners are now about able to supply the market. We quote at $1,50@2 per bbl, as to quality and condition.

GREEN APPLES—Continue to come in slowly, and with a demand considerably in excess of the supply, prices have advanced, and we now quote at $5,50@6,50 per bbl, for good to prime.

CHEESE—Is quiet but steady, with regular jobbing sales at 13@15c, according to quality.

ALLEGHENY CATTLE MARKET.

CATTLE.

The supply of Cattle was large this week, nearly double that of last week, and with a demand restricted almost wholly to supplying the wants of the retail trade, the market was a very hard one, and prices declined from 25 to 50 cents per one hundred pounds. The arrivals by rail were about as large as usual, while the receipts from the adjoining country were unexpectedly large, and, these, as a matter of course, augmented the supply, and crippled the market considerably. It is estimated that were between 1300 and 1400 head on sale, of which about 1000 head were taken by butchers and stock growers, and the balance, or at least, the great proportion, were sent to the Central Yards at East Liberty. The best fat retailing Cattle sold at 7¼@8c, against 8@8¼c last week, and for medium and commonish Cattle, the difference was even greater. There were but very few eastern buyers in attendance, and from what we could learn, they were unable to get the grade of cattle they wanted, except at prices. The butchers bought pretty freely, the market being in their favor, and as already noted, they were able to pick out the best cattle in market at 8c.

SHEEP.

There was also a very full supply of Sheep, but, as has been the case for some weeks past, the offerings were mainly of an inferior character, and, consequently, prime fat Sheep sold without much difficulty at full prices, while common and inferior moved slowly, even at low prices. We quote the best retailing Sheep at 5@5½c; common to medium at 4@4½c, and inferior at 3@3½c. Chapman sold 98 head to Davis, weighing 7,325, at 5⅜ per cwt. Grey sold Davis 100 head, averaging 88 pounds, at 4,50. E. Davis sold Downing 210 head at 4, and McCallister sold a small drove to Hines at 4. Lambs remain about as last quoted, ranging all the way from $1,50@4 per head. Adam Eckert reports having sold 122 head at from $1,50@3 per head.

HOGS

The market for this class of stock is quiet but steady at about last week's quotations, 6¼@7¼c gross, for light to prime heavy averages. Emerick & Co. report having retailed about their usual number at 7@7½, and Glass & Lafferty sold 25 head at 6¾@7¼.

REPORTED SALES OF CATTLE.

Glass & Lafferty retailed 102 head of mixed stock, including bulls, at 3 to 7½c gross, at prices ranging all the way from 3½@7¾, and sent 138 head to East Liberty. Davis sold Hazlewood & Co. 40 head of fairish Belmont Co., Ohio, cattle at 6¾—one steer thrown in; same party sold John Kerwin 39 head bulls at 3@3½. Sargeant sold Moses 20 head of stock steers at 5,60. A. Smith sold 18 head at 5@7½. McAllister & Carr sold in all 93 head, (including 43 head of Green Co., Penna, stock,) at 4½@7½. Hazlewood & Co. sold 30 head of good to extra Illinois cattle at 7 to 8; also, 34 head Ohio cattle at 6¾ to 7¾. John Kerwin 22 head stockers at 4¾ to 5¾. Emerick & Co. 14 head at 5 to 6. M. Verner 35 head at 6 to 7¾. F. Hartman 24 head at 4¾ to 7¼. Rothchilds & Byers 61 head at 5 to 6¾. Katz & Co. 17 head at 3 to 6. Hazlewood sold L. Rothchilds 36 head fairish cattle at 6¾. Marks & Trauman 50 head at 4¾ to 6,50. L. Rothchilds 29 head at 6,50 to 8. Myers & Needy 88 head at 5 to 6. Kraus & Haas 35 head at 5 to 6¾. Greenwald & Kahn 31 head; L. Shamberg 34 head, and J.
